My work experience in editorial, layout, design and journalism starts in the 1990s, on a variety of fanzines and professional magazines, covering subjects including horror movies, comic books and even health & fitness! In the late '90s and early '00s, I spent a while working for an American publisher, in editorial, design and layout.

In journalism & writing, I did additional work for Rebellion, Quarto and others. My artwork and comic strips have appeared in Comics International and Dark Side.

In 2016, I branched out into film & video, working for local television. In 2016-17, I filmed & edited a total of 35 interview packages, including interviews with actress Jenny Hanley, actor/author Jonathan Rigby, space artist David A Hardy, the late actress Edith Scob and the late director Norman J Warren. I was also involved in making four short, independent films, duties including writing, directing, editing, production design and storyboards.

A long interview which I co-filmed and edited was used as a Blu-ray bonus feature by Arrow Video. In late 2019/early 2020, I worked on a local area magazine show for YouTube.

The video work trailed off during COVID, and I decided for the time being to refocus on freelance illustration, design & layout. Most recently, my design and artwork has appeared in a number of books for Bear Manor Media.

I'm eager to find new & interesting opportunities, and try new things whenever possible, while studying and refining existing skills.
